Dr. and Mrs. Sereno Bishop Celebrate Golden Wedding

HALF CENTURY OF MARRIED LIFE

Old and Young Hawaiians Congratulate Early Missionary and Bestow Many Valuable Gifts.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Sereno Bishop celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home on School street, surrounded by a host of relatives and friends who vied with each other to offer their heartiest congratulations to the couple who now for half a century have shared the joys and sorrows of life together. While among the early missionaries themselves were no less than six couples who celebrated their golden wedding, this is the first golden wedding to occur among the children of Hawaii's early preachers.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bishop yesterday afternoon practically all the best old families of Honolulu, who were able to attend, were represented. Those who called signed their names in a register which soon showed a collection of kamaaina autographs as has seldom been seen before here. All along School street, outside the grounds, carriages were standing in line while a multitude of people were passing to and from the house on foot. In the garden was Captain Berger with the Territorial band, which had been sent there by Acting Governor Cooper to show the Government's respect to the couple which has so long been identified with the progress of these islands. The band added much to the festive feeling of the occasion by playing numerous appropriate selections.

Dr. and Mrs. Bishop received in their front parlor, the people passing thence to the other rooms or out on the broad lanai which encircles the house.

Mr. Coan read a paper of congratulation in which the best love and sympathy of the missionary children were offered to Dr. and Mrs. Bishop. She was followed by Professor Alexander, who made a short speech in which he touched on the Christian and loving life which the aged couple had spent in the islands of this group, where they had seen a generation pass away while others grew up so that among those present there were not a few whom the aged Doctor and his wife had watched growing up from childhood to mature man and womanhood.

This was followed by the presentation of a purse containing $100 in gold and a very handsome gold watch, both the gifts of friends of Dr. and Mrs. Bishop. These gifts were presented by John E. Bishop and W. P. Alexander, both grandchildren of the couple in whose honor the gathering came together. Numerous other presents were also received from relatives and friends in various places. Among those might be noted an exceedingly handsome gold mounted cane, a present of Mr. S. T. Alexander of Oakland, Cal. Rev. Sereno Edwards Bishop, D. D., was born at Kaawaloa, Hawaii, on February 7, 1827. He went to the States at an early age and studied first at Amherst College and later on at Auburn Seminary. He was ordained in New York in June, 1852, whereupon he and Mrs. Bishop, who had been married in May of the same year, went from New York on the ship Defiance to San Francisco. They made the voyage from that port to Honolulu in the ship Sovereign of the Seas, arriving here on January 15, 1853.

Dr. Bishop was first stationed as Seamen's Chaplain at Lahaina. From there he went to Hana and later on accepted the position of principal of Lahainaluna Seminary, where he stayed from 1865 to 1867. Since then he has lived in Honolulu. He was editor of "The Friend" from 1887 until quite recently. Mrs. Bishop, nee Cornelia A. Sessions, was born at Adams, N. Y., on January 12, 1826. Dr. and Mrs. Bishop have five children.

Washington Society and Sight-Seers Mrs. Roosevelt's Many Social Duties

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE BULLETIN.

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Washington, D. C., May 17.—The sightseer at the Capital is pretty thorough these days. He pays the Capitol guide a specified sum, according to the printed notice on the entrance to the elevator, and he means to get his money's worth. He wants to know the painter of every time blackened canvas in the big building, and he spends fifteen precious minutes locating the absent members of the House, who seem to be anywhere but at their desks. But there are one or two little items of interest that escape his eagle eye. One is the six toes of the squatting Indian in the enormous canvas which represents the Baptism of Pocahontas. Another is the three-handed girl in the "Farewell Address of Washington." The marvelous young lady wears a décolleté dress of the period and embraces with all three arms a twin young lady, who is just like her except for the arms. As these works are by prominent artists, and supposed to be true to life, it is presumed that they grew

Mrs. J. T. McDonald Gives Reception at Hawaiian Hotel

MRS. AND MISS HUTCHINS HONORED

Parlor and Lanais Decorated as Bowers of Fairy-Like Enchantment — Very Handsome Gowns.

Mrs. J. T. McDonald gave a reception yesterday afternoon at the Hawaiian Hotel in honor of her mother and sister, Mrs. and Miss Hutchins, who have recently come here from the Mainland. It was one of the greatest social events Honolulu has seen in a long time. Dr. and Mrs. McDonald, it may be mentioned, are about to move from apartments in the Metropole building to the cottage lately occupied by Dr. Cooper and family in Alakea street.

For Mrs. McDonald's reception the parlor and lanais in the Richards street end of the hotel were set apart, and decorated in a manner to transform them into bowers of enchantment. Bamboos, palms, greenery and flowers, with baskets of plants swinging from the ceiling, were liberally employed, while the color schemes were pink for the circular lanai, white for the square lanai and yellow for the parlor—each upon the background of living green. It was generally remarked that the decorations had seldom if ever been equaled at any similar entertainment.

The hotel management did itself honor with the refreshments, comprising punch, lemonade, ice cream, cake, etc. Besides its staff of waiters, a bevy of girls assisted in the service.

For music, the hostess was fortunate in securing the services of the Ellis orchestra of eight instruments, including the piano and double bass violin. Its performance was simply exquisite.

Mrs. McDonald was assisted in receiving by Mrs. S. M. Damon, Mrs. F. J. Lowrey, Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. John Drew, Miss Stansbury, Mrs. E. O. White, Miss Charlotte Kruger, Mrs. Philip Frear, Mrs. George Fisher and Miss Fisher, together with several young ladies.

Toilets of the ladies receiving and the guests in general were beautiful, some exceedingly handsome gowns imparting especial distinction to the occasion. Altogether, 350 invitations had been issued, to which the number of responses was in satisfactory proportion. Suffice it to say that the hostess was pleased and her guests delighted with the entire outcome.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT PAU

MALOLO AGROUND

Yesterday afternoon the final games in the annual tennis tournament, the mixed doubles, were won by Miss E. Horner and C. A. Elston who defeated Miss L. K. Ward and A. R. Cunha by the scores of 6-4, 7-5, 8-6. This makes Miss Horner's third cup winning this tournament, she having won the championship in the ladies' singles, and with Miss L. K. Ward, the ladies' doubles.

The games yesterday took place on the Pacific Tennis Club's courts. The winners were presented with handsome leis in club colors after the match.

The good playing of the ladies has been noticeable all through this tournament. The net work of Miss Horner, Miss Horner's service and her strong back-hand and placing game, Mrs. Mary Gunn's back-hand stroke and distinctly mannish service, and Miss Ward's steady, consistent playing are worthy of special notice, as is also Mrs. A. M. Brown's strong stroke and Mrs. S. G. Wilder's net work and service. Taken all around this year's tennis tournament has been an eminently successful one.

Refreshments were daintily served yesterday afternoon and on Thursday by the ladies of the Pacific Tennis Club to the members of the Beretania Tennis Club and to the public in general.

The little island schooner Malolo went ashore in the harbor on the reef opposite the Inter-island wharf shortly before 10 o'clock last night. She came into port from the other side of this island with the usual miscellaneous cargo and passed through the channel all right only to find that something was wrong with her steering gear and that the reef awaited her. Her gasoline engine throbbed convulsively in the effort to get off and it was late indeed when the little schooner was finally liberated from the reef and found her way to the Ewa end of the harbor.

MAXFIELD SURPRISED

A very successful surprise party attended by about twenty-five persons, was last night tendered Mr. J. F. Maxfield at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hilt. Mr. Maxfield came to this city from Minneapolis about a year ago and has since then been working for the Jegg & Co. hardware firm. He will leave for Vancouver in the Aorangi next Wednesday.

Mr. Hilt presented Mr. Maxfield with a purse and a cane as a remembrance from the many friends whom he has made during his stay in this city. Mr. Hilt accompanied the presentation with a short speech, the rippling fun and humor of which received much applause.

MAILE LEHUA CLUB ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

The young ladies of the Maile Lehua Club, the latest and swiftest thing at Kamehameha Girls' School, entertained their friends last evening in a very enjoyable manner and much to the credit of the school, themselves and their leader, Miss Minnie Akina, daughter of the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

A nominal admission fee was charged, the proceeds to be devoted to the purchase of an organ for the K. Detention Camp, better known as "Camp Wood." The hall was crowded to the doors and a nice round sum was realized.

The program made no pretense of formality, as it was somewhat in the nature of the house, theatricals so popular among schooldom in the States. "Beauty and the Beast" was presented, interspersed with choice Hawaiian songs between the acts. The Maile Lehua Club maintains a small glee and mandolin club which possesses talents which would be a credit to a fashionable girls' school in the East.

The acting in the play was well done, that of the young ladies who took the parts respectively of Beauty, the Beast and the Father, being particularly creditable. The scene where the Father takes leave of his daughter Beauty in the place of the Beast was excellently portrayed, the quartet in the final scene singing in subdued tones which materially heightened the effect.

There were several tableaux, in one of which the red lights failed to work, putting the young ladies on their mettle not to forget that they were players. The program ended by the full strength of the club appearing and singing Hawaii Ponoi, at the sound of whose strains, the entire audience rose and did homage to the country which once was and is no more.

KAMEHAMEHAS BEAT SMUGGLERS TWO GOOD BALL GAMES PUNAHOU BEAT ARTILLERYMEN

When the first game of baseball started on the campus at Oahu College yesterday afternoon, there were not more than a hundred people on the field but when the umpire called "play" for the second game, there were in the neighborhood of seven hundred gathered around on the boundary line.

The favorites of the day were the Punahou Athletics in the first game and the Custom House team in the second game. In the first game, the result was as expected but in the second, the Customs went down in defeat.

Ill-Luck Follows Smugglers. It must be stated here, however, that the ill luck which has followed the Custom House team since the attempt was made to put Kaai in as pitcher, continued yesterday with interest. In the first place, Al Moore, the crack second baseman, was forced to remain at home on account of the illness of his wife. Then Elston, the regular third baseman, could not play because he had a scheduled lawn tennis match to play.

This weakened the team very perceptibly and it became necessary to put Wilder at shortstop. The nature of his work will be learned later on in this account. This was not all. To cap the climax, Gorman, the catcher, was hit in the back of the head by a bat in the hands of Richards, the Kamehameha third baseman.

An Uphill Game. However, with this weakened team, the Custom House boys played a most excellent uphill game, fighting for every point with a will. The pure grit of the players went a long way and, in the eighth inning, the score was tied. However, this effort was not held and in the ninth inning, the Kamehamehas made the runs, including the game.

With a score of 10 to 6, the Custom House team was defeated on a rain-soaked field.
